Visioneer and Findo Partner to Provide Scanners with Intelligent Search for Employees

PLEASANTON, Calif., July 13, 2016 — Visioneer has teamed up with intelligent search engine company, Findo, to bring intelligent search to the global scanner market. By providing predictive insights, multi-source searching, and natural language processing, the innovations delivered through this partnership will fundamentally change how employees' access scanned documents.

“According to our research, the average worker has more than 300,000 emails, attachments, and documents and that every day some 300 million of those workers are unable to locate the information they need,” said Gary A. Fowler, CEO and co-founder of Findo. “You know that document or email exists, but you simply cannot find it, and that’s where we can help.”

Together Findo and Visioneer will provide customers with an artificial-intelligence based search assistant to help employees find important information like email, files, and contacts, even when the keywords have been forgotten. This new tool searches across multiple locations, including but not limited to Slack, DropBox, Evernote and Outlook, to help find information no matter the location, save time, and increase personal and group productivity.

“A major pain point for our customers is not remembering where scanned files are saved or even the name of the files,” said Walt Thinfen, CEO of Visioneer. “Findo helps us address this challenge combining our trusted image and document capture solutions with Findo’s artificial intelligence technologies and predictive insights to provide knowledge capture – completing the value chain for our customers.”

Existing Visioneer customers can download Findo software on Visioneer.com.
